Quali sono stati i fattori chiave nella scelta?:

- produttività elevata;
- ambiente protetto ma flessibile;
- scalabilità assoluta;
- velocità di implementazione;
- convergenza dei media

Ma veniamo al tema di oggi, la convergenza dei media.

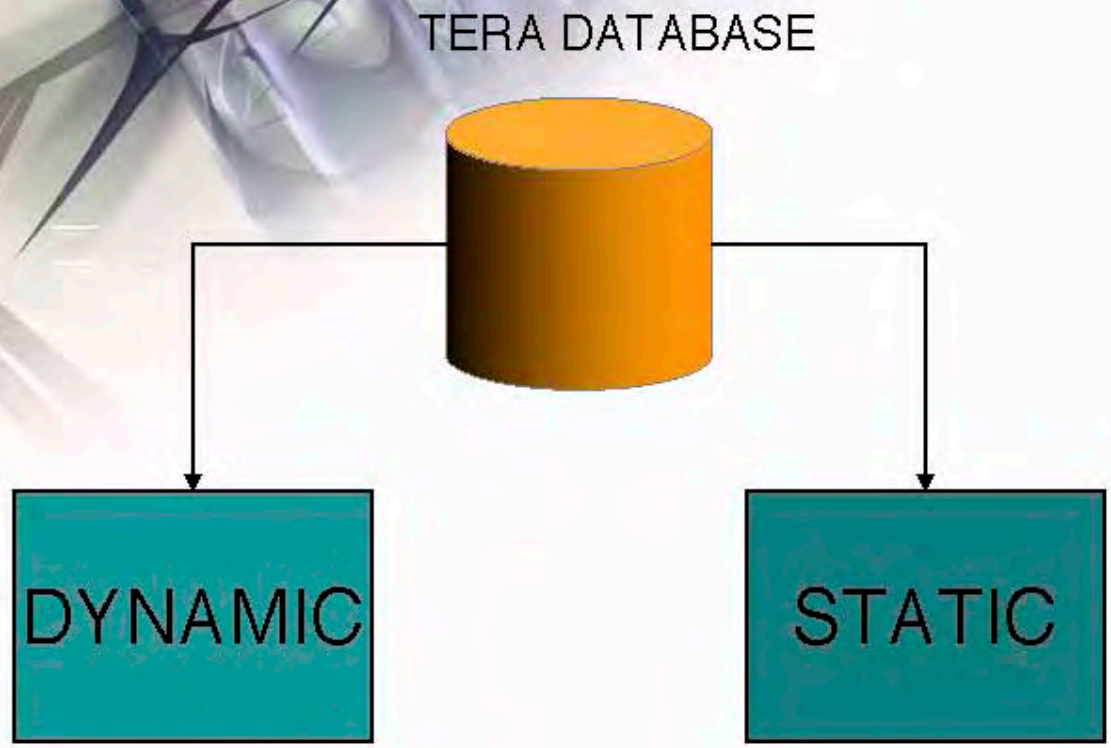
GN3, il sistema editoriale Tera, garantisce una struttura consolidata per gestire attraverso un numero minimo di applicativi tutte le operazioni di editing dei contenuti.

Abbiamo poco tempo, ho pensato di affrontare tre temi:

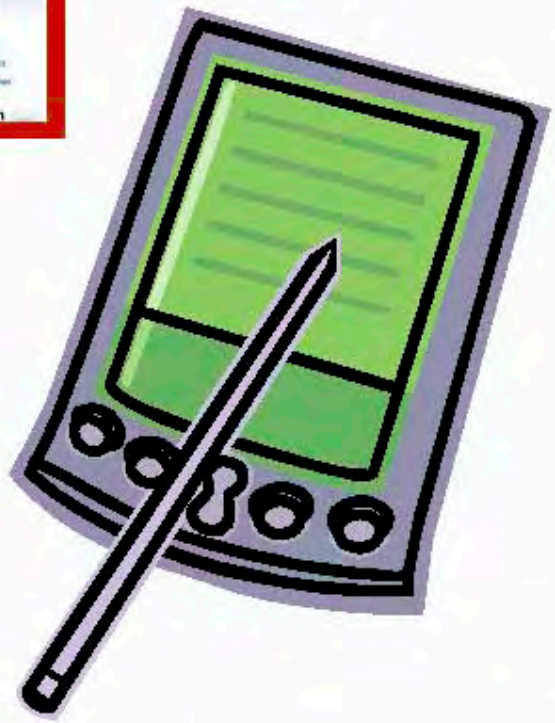
- Canali statici e dinamici, 100% Tera o integrazione, logica della pubblicazione con GN;
- Workflow dei contenuti; applicazioni pratiche
- Users Generated Contents

multi channel publishing



Tera supporta la pubblicazione on line sia in modalità statica che dinamica.

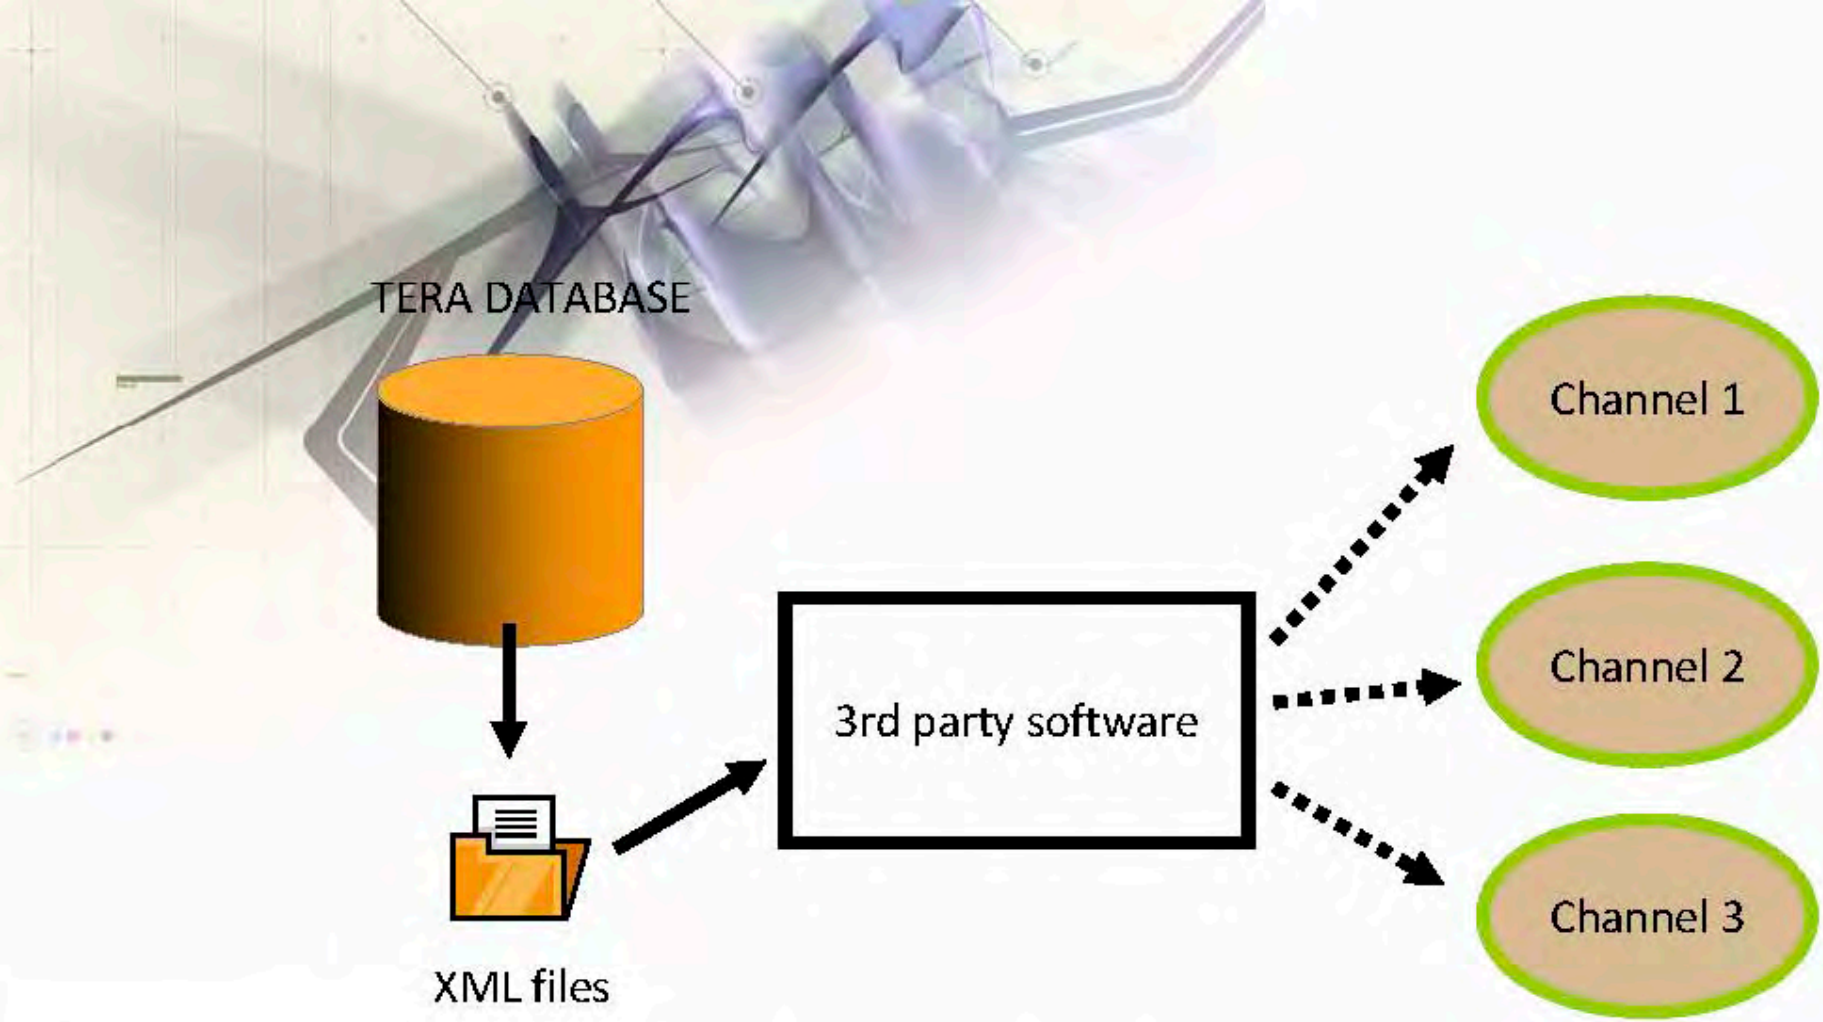
Un canale dinamico viene aggiornato automaticamente ad intervalli regolare



Un canale dinamico non è legato ad un unico media.

Un canale statico verrà aggiornato una volta al giorno.

L'online publishing può essere gestito completamente con applicativi Tera …



... o il software Tera può interagire con sw di terze parti attraverso un export in formato XML.

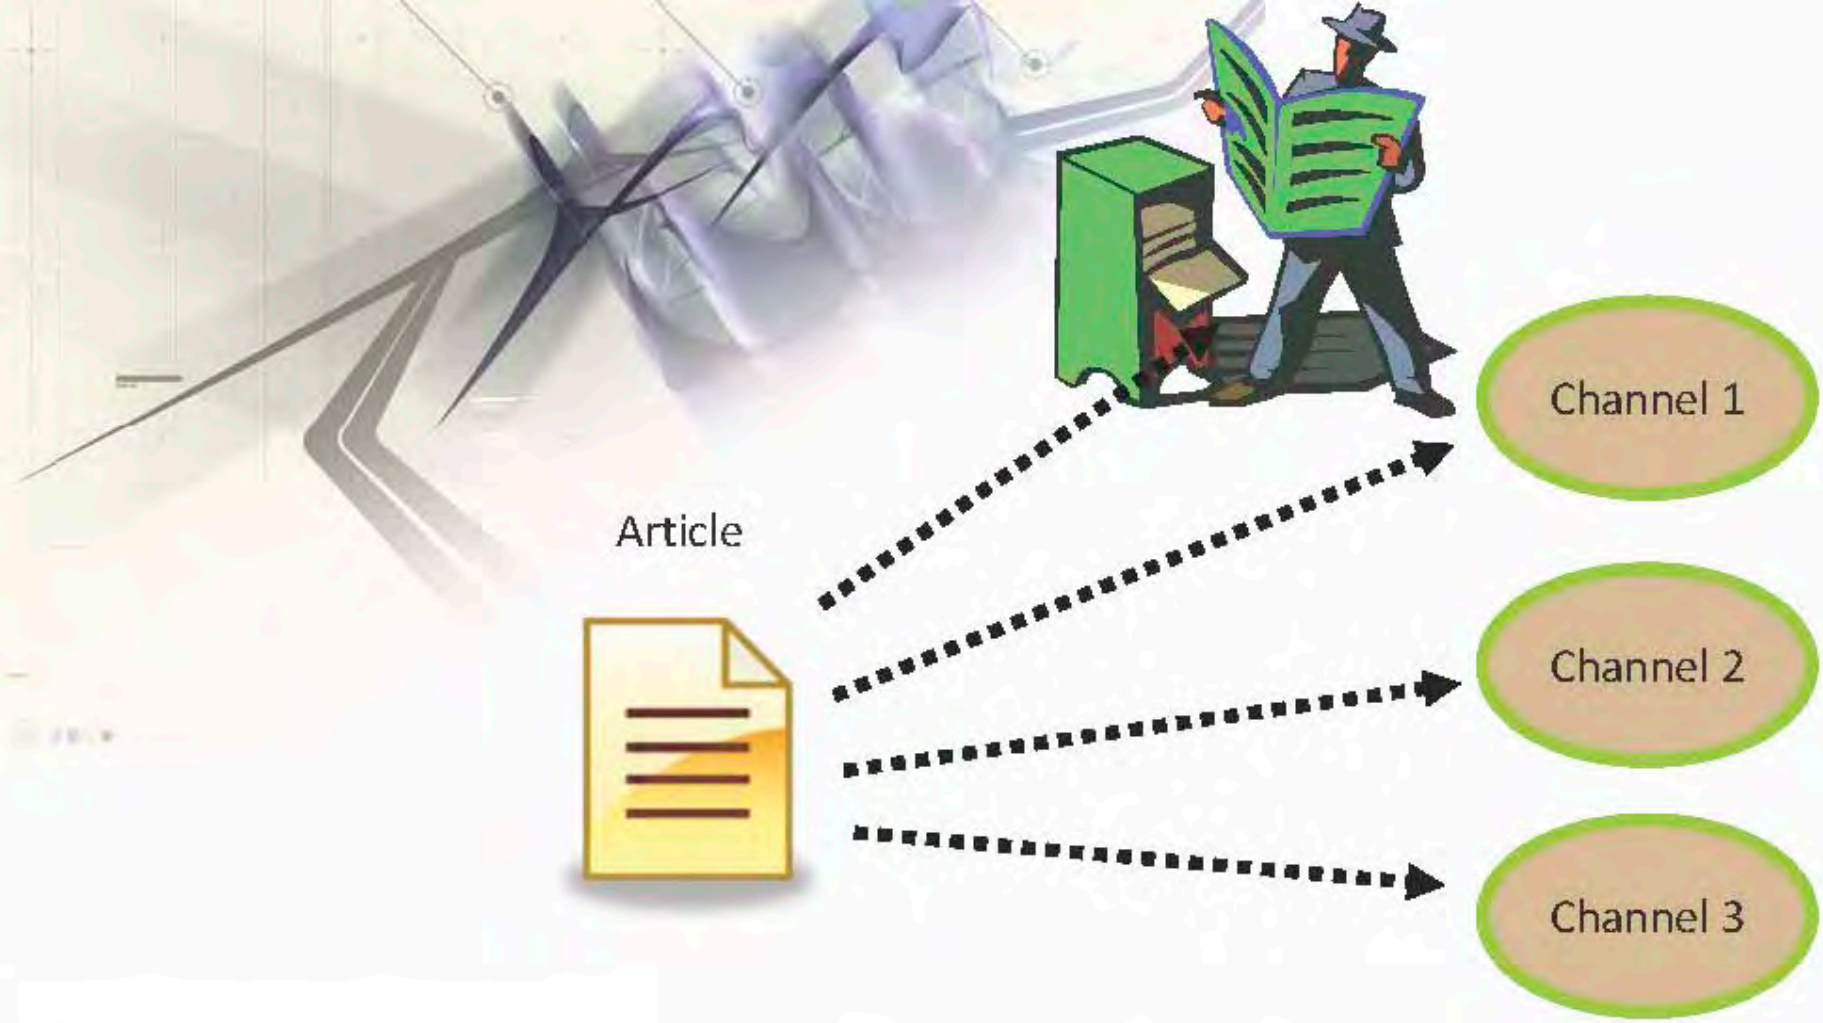
Workflow dei contenuti

Possono esserci diversi workflow a seconda della presenza o meno di una redazione dedicata al singolo canale.



Il concetto base è che lo stesso contenuto (con alcune variazioni) verrà utilizzato nei vari canali di pubblicazione.

CHANNEL WORKFLOW
- Esempio con redazione WEB

Abbiamo un redattore, che lavora su un articolo; questo verrà pubblicato sul giornale il giorno dopo e su WEB oggi stesso.

Soccer-Champions Porto
say they can win in MADRID

▼photo<vp10a>

LISBON, Feb 24 (Reuters) - Despite their 1-1 home draw with Inter Milan on Wednesday, defending champions Porto are optimistic they are on course to reach the quarter-finals of the Champions League.

"The result of the game is not what we expected, but our hopes remain intact," said Porto striker Benni McCarthy.

"The second leg will be complicated, but we can win in Italy, like we did this season in Moscow against CSKA."

Inter Milan went ahead in the 24th minute with a Obafemi Martins goal before defender Ricardo Costa scored a 61st-minute equaliser.

President talks compromise on health bill but offers no specifics
- WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush signaled a willingness Saturday to spend more than what he had recommended for a popular children's health program, but provided no specifics on how much higher he would go.
The president on Wednesday vetoed legislation that would increase spending for the State Children's Health Insurance program by 35 billion over five years. Bush has called for a 5 billion increase. Several Republicans in both chambers have sided with Democratic lawmakers on the issue.
"If putting poor children first takes a little more than the 20 percent increase I have proposed in my budget for SCHIP, I am willing to work with leaders in Congress to find the additional money," Bush said in his weekly radio address.
Democratic lawmakers say votes to override the president's veto will be held in mid-October. That effort is not expected to succeed.
The program provides health insurance to children in families with incomes too great for Medicaid eligibility but not enough to afford private insurance.

When she talks about health care reform on the campaign trail, Democrat Hillary Rodham Clinton points to a multibillion-dollar health insurance program for children as one of her signature accomplishments.
The program, enacted in 1997, has provided 24 billion over 10 years to states to cover more than 6 million children whose families earn too much to be eligible for Medicaid but cannot afford private health insurance.
While it has enjoyed broad support on Capitol Hill, President Bush this week

Dear Sirs,
The attempt by Blue Cross to enlist doctors as informants was an effort to prevent those sick enough to require coverage from getting it. This letter to doctors was only the latest of the insurance companies' tactics for denying care for preexisting conditions. Others have included retroactively dumping coverage after trumping up charges that a patient wasn't completely honest on an initial application, and leaving the patient holding the bill for treatment that the insurance company already promised to pay for.

Judge to sum up evidence

JURORS who will decide Steve Wright's fate were today due to hear from the judge presiding over the Ipswich red-light killings trial as they prepare to retire to consider their verdicts.
Mr Justice Gross will direct the jury on the evidence they have heard in the month-long trial at Ipswich Crown Court and give them advice to help them conduct their deliberations.
The judge was due to begin his summing up today following the closing speeches from the prosecution and cefence teams at the end of last week.
It is expected Mr Justice Gross' comments will stretch into tomorrow, raising the possibility the jury could begir considering their verdicts on the five counts of murder against Wright on Wednesday.
Fresh in their minds will be the closing salvos from the barristers in the case, following lengthy closing speeches.
Wright, of London Road, Ipswich, denies murdering Tania Nicol, 19; Gemma Adams, 25; Anneli Alderton, 24; Paula Clennell, 24; and Annette Nicholls, 29, between October 29, 2006 and December 13 that year.
